SITUATION

Located just a short walk from Exeter's lively city centre and historic quayside, this property offers excellent access to local amenities, scenic walking routes, and a variety of shops, cafés, and restaurants. The vibrant Quayside is home to charming boutiques, pubs, and dining options, with convenient transport links. Exeter St. David's Station, just a ten-minute walk away, provides direct train services to London, while the nearby M5 ensures easy connections to the A30 and A38. With highly regarded schools, leisure facilities, and a thriving cultural scene, Exeter is a fantastic place to call home.

DESCRIPTION

Brimming with character, this Grade II listed home has been thoughtfully restored to preserve its original charm while offering comfortable living across three floors. The ground floor features a generous reception room (formerly the shop and workshop), while the first floor hosts a separate living room and a well-appointed kitchen. Finally, the second floor comprises two bedrooms and a bathroom.

HISTORICAL VALUE

Nestled on West Street, a location rich in heritage and home to landmarks such as St Mary's Steps Church, the famous 'House That Moved,' and remnants of the Roman city wall, this unique property carries a fascinating past. Recognised with a Blue Plaque by the Exeter Civic Society in 2018, the building was once the home and workshop of Cecil "Charlie" Brewer (1895-1985), a renowned bootmaker and pigeon breeder. From his loft here, his pigeon, Mary of Exeter, played a vital role in World War II, delivering top-secret messages and earning the prestigious Dickin Medal for animal bravery.
