Deerleap is an impressive detached modern house built by a local developer on land adjoining the small station of Crowcombe Heathfield on the West Somerset Steam Railway line. The house is set well back from the railway line, but enjoys wonderful views to the locomotives travelling up and down it. The house is built in a Victorian style with decorative brickwork and pretty pitched tiled roof.

A utility room provides access to a cloakroom and the conservatory at the rear of the house.

On the first floor there is an open landing with four bedrooms, two having en-suite shower rooms, and a family bathroom suite.

OUTSIDE

The gardens are a particular feature of the property and include a paved terrace which adjoins the house with steps leading up to the main area of garden which is laid to lawn with some fine trees surrounding the boundary. There are also a number of fruit trees, mature shrubs, well stocked flower beds, a timber store shed and a summerhouse which is insulated and has power. To the front is a brick paved driveway leading to an integral single garage with roller door. There is a good sized garden to the front of the property which is enclosed in part by low brick walling. There is a further area of garden to one side.
