Property Description

Lovingly restored by the current owners over 30 years ago, the property was once two adjoining 19th-century cottages which they sympathetically renovated to reveal the original beams, stone fireplace, and timber floors that had been hidden under 1970s-style finishes. The result is a warm, welcoming home full of personality — ready to move into and enjoy, while offering the next owners scope to update areas such as the kitchen, bathroom, decking, and garden to their own taste.

The cosy lounge features exposed beams, timber floors, and a solid stone chimney breast housing a multi-fuel stove. The adjoining dining room, with an under-stairs nook currently used as a study, leads into a generous kitchen-diner with countryside views and access to a sunny south-facing conservatory.

Upstairs are two comfortable double bedrooms, each retaining original features, along with a practical bathroom with open shower cubicle, WC, and hand basin.

Outside, the tiered rear garden and decking areas make the most of the stunning rural outlook. While the garden now requires some attention, it offers fantastic potential for re-landscaping or creating outdoor spaces that make full use of the setting. A detached double garage with electric roller door and power provides excellent storage or workshop space.

Peacefully located yet close to village amenities and only nine miles from Abergele and the A55, this much-loved home is now ready for new owners to appreciate its character and make it their own.
