Strathnairn Street, SE1

The house has a wonderful sense of space and is flooded with light due to its southerly aspect and conservatory.

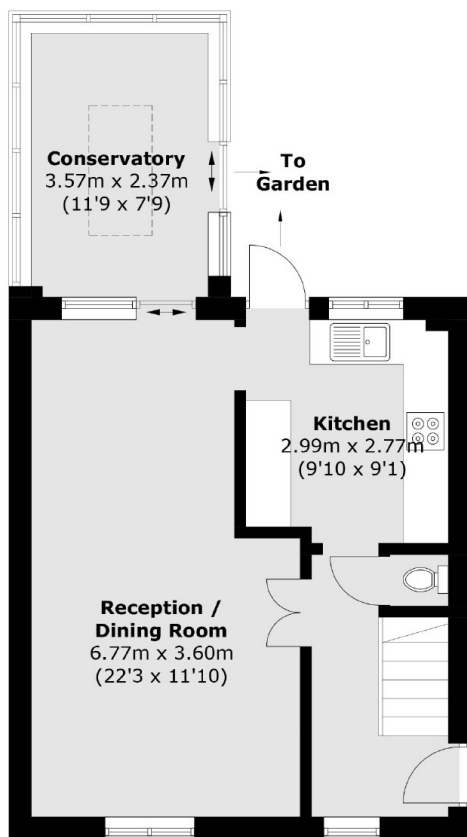

On the ground floor is a substantial main reception room, which leads through to the conservatory and the garden, which is decked with low maintenance raised beds. The kitchen is also to the back of the house, overlooking the garden.

On the floor above are two double bedrooms, with ample room for storage, a single bedroom currently used as a study, and the family bathroom, as well as access to a large boarded loft.

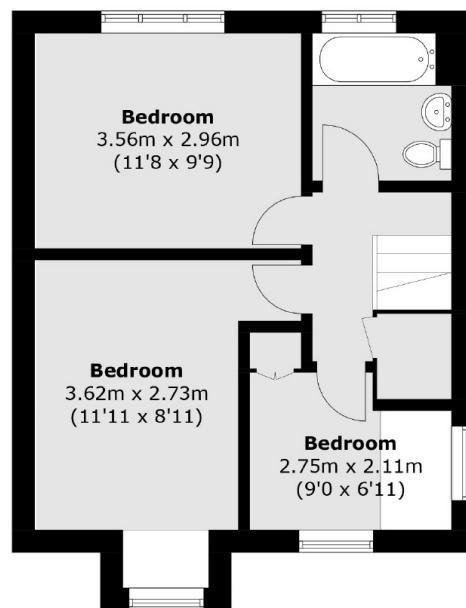

The house additionally benefits from solar panels and an off-street parking space. There also remains significant potential for extension, subject to planning, both to the rear and into the loft.
