The village centred around the green, and the 12th century church comprises many period ironstone houses and cottages. The village of Shenington is certainly steeped in history.

The property

Stone Holt is a handsome stone-built, grade II listed, period property dating from the late seventeenth century with twentieth-century additions. There are two main staircases, one is an attractive two storey semi-circular spiral staircase projection to the west elevation with stone stairwell windows, in keeping with the age of the property, the other being of traditional design.

The property has beautifully restored period features, including exposed timberwork, ceiling beams, timber spiral staircases, two stone inglenook fireplaces now with wood burners, oak doors, timber floors, leaded windows, window seats and flagstones. Windows and dormers have been replaced. Bathrooms and shower rooms have stylish contemporary sanitaryware.

Reception rooms include the reception hall, drawing room with its inglenook, exposed stonework and timbers and access to the spiral staircase and dining room on the lower ground floor with its inglenook, underfloor heating and door to the courtyard garden. The snug has a brick fireplace and woodburner, with built-in shelving to either side and double doors to the conservatory. The conservatory was added in 2009 with underfloor heating. The kitchen has an electric AGA and bespoke Martin Moore fitted kitchen with granite tops and integrated appliances.

The main bedroom has a spiral to a spacious en suite shower room above. There are three further spacious bedrooms, one with fitted furniture, study/ bedroom five and family bathroom, with a further limestone tiled shower room below.
