SITUATION

Oaklands Farm is situated within the parish of West Anstey in North Devon with a fine outlook towards the Exmoor National Park and easily accessible from the towns of Dulverton, Tiverton and South Molton.

Dulverton lies 5.4 miles to the north-east and South Molton is 9.5 miles to the west. The larger market town of Tiverton lies 11 miles to the south-east from where the A361 dual carriageway links to the M5 at Junction 27.

DESCRIPTION

Oaklands Farm extends to approximately 66.16 acres (26.76 hectares) and includes a versatile range of agricultural buildings which have been used for poultry and calf rearing. The land comprises a mixture of productive pasture fields for mowing and grazing together with some culm grassland for conservation and pockets of woodland.

POULTRY / CALF REARING BUILDINGS: These buildings were originally constructed for the rearing of young poultry (capacity 7,000 birds) in 2017 and more recently have been used for calf rearing. Both buildings have a steel frame and box profile steel roof sheets and are insulated and part timber clad internally with a concrete floor.

Building 1: 27.43m x 13.72m plus a control room measuring 3.04m x 3.04m.

Building 2: 27.43m x 13.72m plus a control room measuring 3.04m x 3.04m.

STRAW / MACHINERY STORAGE BUILDING (17.91m x 13.13m). This building was constructed in 2021 with a steel frame and a fibre cement roof. It is open fronted and with concrete panels and timber space boarding above.

THE LAND: The land includes four grass enclosures which are suitable for mowing and grazing and are mostly gently sloping and there is an area of culm and purple moor grass known as Colliers Moor which has the River Yeo flowing along it's eastern boundary. In addition there are two areas of mature deciduous woodland which total approximately 5 acres.

SERVICES

Private water from a borehole. Mains electricity is connected to the poultry / calf rearing buildings. There is also a spring and access to the River Yeo.
