Ruardean Hill is a small village located in the Forest of Dean district of Gloucestershire. It is situated on a hilltop in the eastern part of the Forest of Dean, approximately 5 miles (8 kilometres) west of the town of Cinderford.

Ruardean Hill is known for its scenic views and its location within the beautiful natural surroundings of the Forest of Dean. The village offers a tranquil and rural atmosphere, making it an ideal place for those seeking a peaceful lifestyle.

While Ruardean Hill is a small village, it offers some essential amenities for its residents. These include a primary school and a village hall. Additionally, the village is in proximity to nearby towns and villages where further services and facilities can be found. The village features a mix of traditional and modern architecture, with some stone cottages and newer residential developments.

Ruardean Hill provides access to outdoor activities and nature trails. The Forest of Dean offers opportunities for walking, cycling, and exploring the woodlands. Nearby attractions such as Symonds Yat and the Wye Valley are also within reach.
