Situation

The village of Heriot enjoys a quiet rural setting, positioned conveniently along the A7. The village is popular for commuters, being only 24 miles from Edinburgh, and within easy travelling distance to many Scottish Border towns including the centrally located Galashiels. Heriot Primary School is located in the village, with transport running to secondary schools in both the Borders and Edinburgh regions. The nearby village of Stow benefits from a platform servicing the Borders Railway, enabling train travel to Edinburgh and beyond. Mobile banking, post office and library services frequent the village, with Stow providing a village store and health centre. The village enjoys an active community life with many local groups and projects for residents.
