32 York Street is a late Victorian terrace house, which has been creatively extended, altered and refurbished to an excellent standard. This fine period home offers an expansive open-plan living space with modern touches, period features and a high degree of natural light throughout both floors.

Upon entering the property, an impressive social reception space comprises of three areas; the dining area, kitchen and sitting room. The dining area to the front has an open fireplace, sash window with custom-made shutters, picture rail and original recess cabinetry. A stylish, contemporary and well-equipped kitchen divides the dining area and sitting room providing has a range of two-tone cabinets, marble worktops, an inset Belfast sink and a range of integrated appliances. There is a concealed understairs storage cupboard behind attractive wood panelling. A rear sitting area with elegant bifold doors provides complete views of and access to the garden. A beautiful rustic wooden floor runs throughout the ground floor level.

Upstairs, an elegant landing space leads to a bright and airy bathroom suite with stylish fittings and two spacious double bedrooms. Bedroom one has a wealth of character and bedroom two has a vaulted ceiling with Velux window and views to the garden.

Outside, the rear garden has been beautifully designed and provides rear access to a back lane. A gravelled pathway with established and colour-themed borders to both sides, leads to a paved and secluded seating area and timber store. There is access to residential parking in a private road at the back.

Agent's Note

There is a right of way to the rear through neighbouring properties, leading to the side access gate.
