Highfield House, Black Lane, Whiston

An upgraded countryside retreat offering refined living, landscaped gardens, and scenic surroundings.

Highfield House offers its next owner upgraded accommodation in the form of a high-end Italian painted Ash wood kitchen-diner, alongside landscaped gardens enhanced with flowerbeds, hedging, and a newly established wildflower meadow. These improvements, paired with secure fencing for privacy, elevate the outdoor space into a serene haven. Additionally, the property has made use of an unregistered plot of land to the front for garden and parking purposes over the past three years, presenting an opportunity to incorporate it into the legal title if desired.

Welcome to Highfield House — a beautifully crafted, architect-designed sandstone home nestled in the tranquil village of Whiston. Backing onto the picturesque Whiston Hall Golf Course and surrounded by the rolling Staffordshire Moorlands, this four-bedroom detached home blends rural serenity with luxurious modern living.

Inside, you'll find generously proportioned, light-filled rooms, a stunning Italian kitchen complete with a DeLonghi range cooker, and multiple versatile spaces ideal for home offices or studies. The lounge boasts dual-aspect windows and a charming dual-fuel log burner, creating a cosy atmosphere all year round. Upstairs, the master bedroom enjoys far-reaching views and a stylish en-suite, while the remaining bedrooms provide comfort and flexibility for growing families or guests.

Situated on a quiet country lane with direct access to multiple public footpaths, this home is ideal for nature lovers, dog walkers, and those seeking peace without isolation. With proximity to charming market towns such as Leek and Ashbourne, National Trust properties like Ilam Park and Hawksmoor Woodlands, and the nearby Peak District, Highfield House is a rare opportunity to enjoy elevated village living — upgraded, refined, and ready to enjoy.
