Character-Filled Victorian Terrace with Stylish Modern Touches – Over 1,700 Sq Ft Across Four Floors

This substantial four-bedroom mid-terrace on Meyrick Road blends classic period features with a modern layout, creating a home full of personality, space, and versatility. Spanning over 1,730 square feet across four levels, including a useful cellar, this is a house that adapts to family life, home working, and entertaining with ease.

Step through the bold red door and you're greeted by a bay-fronted living room with high ceilings, ornate corning, and a statement fireplace – all drenched in natural light. To the rear, the sleek fitted kitchen with integrated appliances flows out to a private outdoor terrace, perfect for summer evenings and social gatherings. There's also a downstairs WC and utility area for added practicality.

Upstairs, the first floor offers three bedrooms and a beautifully finished bathroom. The second floor hosts a spacious fourth bedroom complete with en-suite, offering an ideal principal suite, guest space or teenager's retreat.

A generous cellar offers excellent storage or potential conversion options. Outside, the low-maintenance garden has been landscaped for easy upkeep without compromising on style or privacy.

Built circa 1880, this property retains all the character you'd expect from a period home – tall skirting boards, decorative plasterwork, and striking sash-style windows – yet it's been thoughtfully updated for modern comfort.

Meyrick Road is a well-established residential street just north of Stafford town centre. You're within walking distance of shops, schools, parks and the railway station – with London Euston reached in just over an hour. Road links via the M6 are also close by.

If you're looking for something with space, substance, and original charm, this one ticks the right boxes.

About the Area – Meyrick Road, Stafford

Meyrick Road is located in the historic Forebridge area of Stafford, known for its character properties and central convenience. Just under a kilometre from Stafford railway station, it's perfectly placed for commuters, with regular direct services to Birmingham, Manchester, and London.

The street is made up mainly of solid mid-terrace Victorian homes, popular for their spacious layouts and period features.

Families will find plenty of appeal here. St Paul's C of E Primary is only a short walk away, and well-regarded secondary schools including King Edward VI and Stafford Manor High School are within easy reach. For older students, Sir Graham Balfour is also accessible from the area.

Stafford town centre is within walking distance, offering a wide range of shops, cafés, restaurants, leisure facilities, and essential services. Victoria Park, the town's main green space, is nearby and ideal for walks, playgrounds and seasonal events. For those who enjoy the outdoors, the Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal also runs close by, offering scenic walking and cycling routes.

Connectivity is a major strength. In addition to the nearby rail station, the A34 provides a direct route into the town centre, and the M6 motorway (Junctions 13 and 14) offers straightforward access across the Midlands and beyond. Bus services regularly run through the local area linking with surrounding towns and villages.

Meyrick Road and the surrounding Forebridge area offer a vibrant yet peaceful community with a great mix of traditional charm and modern-day convenience. Whether you're a professional, family, or someone looking to enjoy town-centre living with character, it's an excellent place to call home.
