Description

Levisham is a small village in the Ryedale district of North Yorkshire, located within the North York Moors National Park and about 5 miles north of its nearest market town, Pickering. The village itself is a most picturesque one, flanked by undulating dales, open fields and moorland. It has an attractive village green with a mixture of stone built properties to either side of the main street and a popular village pub at the end of it. Although some local produce may be available from villagers, the main amenity of shops and services are found in Pickering; where there is a doctors, dentists, library and schools for all ages. From here good road links connect to the East Coast and the Cities of York and Leeds. The nearest train station can be found 15 miles away in the Market town of Malton which offers a direct route to York and an approximate 2 hour Intercity service to London and Edinburgh.

White Heather Cottage is a detached stone under pantile roof cottage believed to date back to the 18th Century. It has a Southerly front aspect that overlooks its private garden and has the added benefit of a garage and a couple of additional outbuildings within its grounds. The cottage has relatively recently had a significant program of refurbishment both externally and internally that includes a re-roof to both the main house and the useful garden store, replaced dormers and windows to the majority of the house, a new kitchen and a replacement bathroom. However there is still scope for some cosmetic refurbishment and an option to replace the property's electric heating system.
