Foxley

HOME TO NORFOLK'S LARGEST
REMAINING ANCIENT WOODLAND

Foxley is a picturesque and historic village nestled in the heart of Norfolk, located approximately 15 miles northwest of Norwich and 9 miles southeast of Fakenham. Despite its peaceful, rural charm, Foxley benefits from a convenient position along the A1067, offering direct road links to nearby towns and the city of Norwich.

A key highlight of the area is Foxley Wood, Norfolk's largest remaining ancient woodland and a designated nature reserve managed by the Norfolk Wildlife Trust. This stunning woodland is particularly well-known for its springtime bluebells and supports a rich variety of flora and fauna, including over 350 species of flowering plants and numerous bird species. With peaceful walking trails and opportunities for wildlife watching, Foxley Wood is a beloved destination for nature enthusiasts and families alike.

While Foxley itself is a quiet village, it is just a short distance from Bawdeswell, which offers additional amenities including a Morrisons Daily, café and the popular Bawdeswell Garden Centre—a well-stocked destination for gardening supplies, gifts, and local produce, complete with a café that makes it a local favourite.

Nearby market towns such as Reepham and Dereham provide further amenities including supermarkets, restaurants, schools and healthcare services, making Foxley an ideal base for those seeking a tranquil village lifestyle with convenient access to both countryside and town living.
