DESCRIPTION

Perrymans The Mounting Block presents elevations of painted render beneath a mainly thatched (last re-thatched 10 years ago although, the ridge was replaced in November 2024 - the photographs were taken prior to this, but also in 2024) but partly slate roof. The original core is reputed to be of 17th century origin and the property, which is Grade II Listed, as being of architectural and historical importance, has been sympathetically & tastefully modernised to combine 21st century refinements with many original features. There are good ceiling heights for a period dwelling. This is certainly a property that needs to be viewed internally to be fully appreciated. Special Note; The property is attached to Perrymans itself, a private residence, owned by the vendors of Perrymans The Mounting Block. They have run the latter until now, as a self contained holiday let, but the time has come for them to retire. The two properties share the same gated access, bordered by a babbling brook, but then each have private designated parking areas. The photographs were taken when the property was fully furnished as a holiday let. Most of this has now been removed. The remaining pieces are potentially available to purchase by separate negotiation.
