Rivers Corner Sturminster Newton

Guide Price
£625,000

A charming semi detached cottage, steeped in not only its own history, but that of others, with three double bedrooms, four reception rooms and sitting in two acres of formal garden and cider apple orchard. The property lies in the small hamlet of Rivers Corner, which is just one and half miles from the market town of Sturminster Newton.

The original cottage dates to 1720 when it formed part of the Pitt Rivers Estate and has been sympathetically extended to the side, which merges seamlessly with the existing building. Whilst the cottage retains its own characterful and original features, such as the exposed painted ceiling beams in two of the reception rooms and cast iron fireplace in the main bedroom as well as an original stove, which the current owners have available, it also has links to the past through other properties. The wood flooring in the hall, dining room and study was originally in Thornhill House and is a few hundred years old, the plank and muntin walls on the landing have come from properties in Bulbarrow and Okeford Fitzpaine and the flagstone flooring reclaimed from a cellar in Swanage, gives the sitting room an authenticity that binds it to the initial cottage. One of the windows was salvaged from Keyneston Mill and formed the model for the rest of the replacement windows of the cottage. The arched door in the sitting room came from a church in Owermoigne and opens to the partly subterranean reception room - affectionately called 'the cellar', which has ash flooring from nearby Piddleswood and a gargoyle that was created by Sarah Pennell who was part of the Salisbury Cathedral restoration team. The property also boasts a bit of folklore with the twisted chimney - no witches will get in here!

With an acre of productive cider apple orchard, there is plenty of opportunity for home brew and an acre of garden provides a safe and secure space for children and pets to let off steam.

Viewing essential.

An original style timber door with inset glass pane opens into the hall with stairs rising to the first floor, bespoke double doors opening to the study and door to the dining room. The dining room has cottage windows and tiled sill overlooking the front garden, exposed painted ceiling beams, old fireplace and wood flooring. It opens to the kitchen, which has a window to the side overlooking part of the garden and the outside seating area. The kitchen is fitted with a range of rustic style floor cupboards, separate drawer unit and eye level cupboards with open ended display shelves. To one side of the kitchen there is a granite work surface with inset Butler style sink and swan neck mixer tap plus space and plumbing under for a washing machine and dishwasher. There is additional work surfaces plus recess with beam above housing the Stanley, which serves the oil central heating and cooking. There is also a two plate ceramic hob. There is a door to the rear porch. The study boasts cottage style windows overlooking the front and rear gardens, exposed painted ceiling beams and wood flooring. From here there is a door to the cloakroom and opening to the sitting room. This is the newest part of the cottage and blends sympathetically with the original building. It enjoys a double outlook with cottage windows to the front and rear plus double doors leading out to the rear seating area and garden, exposed ceiling beam, inglenook style fireplace with beam and burner as well as flagstone flooring. An arched door to the side of the fireplace opens to stairs leading down to the further reception room, affectionately referred to as the 'cellar'. This has to be seen - a partly subterranean round room with wood flooring, stain glass windows, pitched ceiling with feature beams and unique cross beam made from two tree trunks. This room will lend itself to many usages.

First Floor

The landing has a window overlooking the rear garden and boasts plank and muntin walls. All three bedrooms are double sized with built in wardrobes and enjoy some countryside views or of the grounds from the cottage style windows. Bedroom one has an original cast iron fireplace with tiled hearth. Orchard

From the parking area an arched arbour leads to the orchard. This extends to around an acre and is enclosed in part by post and rail and post and stock wire fencing and merges with the formal gardens. There are 48 cider apple trees of different varieties including vintage Kingston Black and Yarlington Mill. In addition, there are quince, beech and oak trees.

Garden

There is a vegetable garden by the orchard with raised beds. The rest of the formal garden is laid to lawn and planted with trees that include a line of poplar trees that help shield the garden from the wind, mature chestnut tree, a pretty pink elder flower as well as a fig tree. The front garden is laid to lawn with a medlar tree and greengage and is enclosed by a high mature hedge. The garden, including the cottage sits in around another acre and has a high degree of privacy with a sunny aspect and has frequently visiting deer in the mornings and at dusk.

Outbuildings

There is a solid log cabin with attached store, which offers the potential as a work from home station and is situated by the orchard.

The greenhouse is ideally sited close to the vegetable garden.
