Summary of Accommodation

About the property

Castle Edge is a truly unique property, created by a local Architect as his own family residence and orientated intentionally to maximise this stunning plot and the views it affords over the area. The property itself offers over 3000 square footage of accommodation providing a great deal of adaptability and flexibility. From the driveway, a covered entrance porch leads into a ground floor vestibule hallway from which a staircase leads up from this lower ground floor while doors open into a fourth double bedroom, to a cloakroom/WC and into the integral garage. The staircase from the lower ground floor leads up to the ground floor and the principal living accommodation. A central hallway has doors radiating to all the living rooms. Double doors open into a more formal sitting room with square bay window to the front, St Quintins Hill elevation and, to one end, an open fire within a traditionally style surround. A dining room is open plan to the adjoining sitting area and breakfast room, both these positioned to enjoy a westerly aspect looking out over the village towards Mount Ida and Llanblethian Church to the hill top. Double doors open from here to a decked seating area which sweeps around into the rear garden. The living area is open plan to a breakfast area with sizeable kitchen beyond fitted providing a very good range of units with appliances, where fitted, to remain including gas hob, electric oven and fully integrated dishwasher. Tiled flooring extends from here into a utility room with additional storage and, to one corner, a cloakroom with WC. Also to the ground floor is a sizeable mulituse study/playroom occupying the south western corner and including a curving exterior wall.

The bedroom accommodation, to the top floor, includes the three main bedrooms. The largest of these bedrooms is an especially good double bedroom with fine westerly aspect over surrounding area. It has its own en suite bathroom. Bedrooms two and three are both good doubles and both share use of a 'Jack & Jill' en suite shower room.

Garden & Grounds

The property is entered from St Quintins Hill through a broad pull-in onto a block paved driveway from which there is access in to the integral garage via a double width, remote control "up and over" door; the paving extends to the principal entrance doorway.

The property sits within a plot benefitting from superb views. The front of the property looks south, while the principal living spaces enjoy great westerly views over Llanblethian Village onto Mount Ida. The northern boundary to the garden is marked by fencing, beyond which are the stone walls of St Quintins Castle which borders Castle Edge.

Garden space to the rear includes an expansive paved seating area overlooked by the sitting room and kitchen. A fish pond with feature waterfall sits to one side; the seating area extends, to the western edges, onto a decked seating area sweeping around the property to allow access from the sitting room. A timber summer house to one corner of plot is understood to be insulated to residential specification with power connected and is currently used a studio / workshop / office. Beyond the initial patio, steps lead to an additional seating area again surrounded by mature shrub beds and with a fine west / south westerly view over the garden onto
