

RAINHILL, VICARAGE LANE, WATER ORTON, B46 1RX

OFFERS IN THE REGION OF — £750,000

'Rainhill', originally named 'Shambles' after the market street in York, takes its updated title thanks to its previous owners who were descendants of Henry Booth, a famous engineer born in 1788 that through his working career has been credited as to his impact in introducing the world's first steam railway in Manchester & Liverpool, conducting both scheduled passenger & freight services.

In 1829, trials of 10 prospective locomotives were held across a 1 mile level track at Rainhill in Lancashire, in the aim of operating on the new railway system, contestants were handed a £500 prize fund for the eventual winner. Five locomotives were found to be eligible, Robert Stephenson's 'Rocket' steam train was the outright winner.

Suggestions of Henry Booths impact in the development of the 'Rocket' were rumoured, and credit was given as to the use of a multi-tubular boiler system.

Booth was later credited with the invention of the screw coupling, a statue of him holding one is displayed in St Georges Hall, Liverpool.
