GENERAL COMMENTS

The setting of Old Tretheake Mill is very special indeed. Located in a very quiet position within walking distance of West Portholland beach and the coastal footpath it enjoys complete privacy with no near neighbours. The mill itself is extremely old, parts of it date back to the 1600's. It is full of character and has been greatly improved during our client's ownership although prospective purchasers will want to modernise in places. The accommodation is extremely versatile and currently arranged as four bedrooms but could easily be reconfigured to provide six bedrooms or there is a possibility to create a separate living unit for a dependent relative or possibly a holiday let. The accommodation includes kitchen/breakfast room with Aga, dining room with inglenook fireplace, sitting room, workshop, cloakroom and utility on the ground floor. On the first floor are four bedrooms, bathroom and superb second sitting room with wood burner. The house has private spring water, modern sewage treatment plant and oil-fired central heating. The gardens and grounds are delightful, well stocked with many mature shrubs and plants and a river runs along the eastern boundary. The vendors have created a superb model steam railway with very long track, associated buildings, bridges and tunnel which is incredible. It will be fabulous if the purchaser is a railway enthusiast to continue enjoying this. A modern garage has been erected in recent years and there is driveway parking. There are numerous garden sheds, productive vegetable garden, apple trees and well stocked fruit cage. An internal viewing is essential.

LOCATION

Old Tretheake Mill is set within the Parish of Veryan but is closer to the hamlet of East and West Portholland which are two of the most unspoiled coves on the eastern edge of the Peninsula. In the immediate area the vast majority of the properties are owned by the Caerhays Estate and in many respects the surrounding area has remained largely unchanged for the last one hundred years or more. East and West Portholland have recently been declared a National Heritage Asset and this part of the Peninsula is often described as an area of

"real" Cornwall where little or no development has taken place in recent years. Just over a mile away is the unspoiled fishing village of Portloe which is equally picturesque and is one of the "jewels" of the Roseland Peninsula. It has seen little or no intensive development in modern times and still retains its traditional atmosphere with clusters of old stone cottages set in a cleft of the cliff and descending to a small harbour still used by local fisherman but with the industry now sadly concentrating on crab and lobsters.

About two miles from Old Tretheake Mill is the larger village of Veryan, known for its picturesque round houses built in the 19th Century by a clergyman. Here there is a pub, church, primary school, post office/general store as well as a social/sports hall with indoor bowls and tennis courts. Much of the land in the area is owned and protected by the National Trust and the cliff top walks in the immediate vicinity are exceptional. The nearby Carne and Pendower beach is also a favourite with locals and visitors alike. The city of Truro with its Cathedral and fine shopping centre is about thirteen miles away. There is a main line railway station to London (Paddington) and also the Treliske Hospital which serves the whole of the county.

GARDENS AND GROUNDS

The delightful gardens and grounds extend to approximately 1.5 acres and are extremely private. They are surprisingly sunny for a valley setting and well stocked with many interesting shrubs and plants including roses, camellias, guneras and extensive lawns. A river runs along the eastern boundary which is a lovely feature. The garden is very long - over 300 meters, running up the valley from the house. There are extensive concrete outbuildings including a mower shed, workshop and tool shed with light and power and several wooden garden sheds. The productive vegetable garden is enclosed and "rabbit proof" with several beds, fruit cage, greenhouse and water taps.

RAILWAY

The current owners have created the most amazing railway track known as Tretheake Mill Railway that runs the length of the gardens. It includes a long tunnel and a superb "Brunel style" viaduct! Whilst the vendors will be delighted if a fellow railway enthusiast wants to purchase the property and continue their hard work they reserve the right to remove the track and equipment.
