GENERAL COMMENTS

Holmhurst is a charming semi-detached character cottage believed to date from the late 17th to early 18th century, tucked away along Creed Lane, away from the main thoroughfare. While it adjoins a listed building on Fore Street, it is noteworthy that Holmhurst itself is not listed.

Originally two separate cottages (1 and 2 Creed Lane), the properties were combined in 1983, with a kitchen and bathroom extension added in 1992. This unique history is reflected in the home's intriguing layout and rich character.

Owned by the same family for over 50 years and now offered for sale for the first time since the 1970s, the property showcases many period features typical of its era and of the village, whose origins trace back to Roman times.

The accommodation includes a light and spacious lounge/dining room, a snug, kitchen, and bathroom on the ground floor. Two staircases lead to the first floor, where there are two bedrooms on one side and a third bedroom on the other, reflecting the home's dual-cottage origins. Many of the fixtures and fittings as well as furnishings can be available via separate negotiation.

To the side of the property is a private, enclosed courtyard garden, enjoying a sunny aspect throughout much of the day, offering seclusion and privacy.

Creed Lane leads on to the historic St Crida's Church, a beautiful 12th-century parish church set just a mile south of Grampound in the picturesque hamlet of Creed. The church occupies an elevated position with views over the tranquil, sunlit valley of the River Fal.

GRAMPOUND

The village of Grampound lies on the A390 between Truro and St. Austell and offers a variety of local facilities for daily needs including shop, church, primary school, pub, village amenities cafe and village hall. The village has the benefit of a regular bus service and is also close to the picturesque attractions of the Roseland Peninsula and the south Cornish coast. The city of Truro with its fine Cathedral, major shopping centre and main line railway link to London (Paddington) is about nine miles. St. Austell is about six miles.

LOCAL HISTORY

In the past the little white river, part of the upper reaches of the river Fal which runs under the bridge at the bottom of Fore Street in Grampound, was a deep and busy waterway with a Roman encampment nearby. About 1,600 years ago the Romans built a great bridge here; in Norman times the bridge was called Grand Pont, by which name the village was known and from which its present name has evolved.

The tannery in Grampound has a rich history reflecting its importance in the local economy and community over the centuries. Grampound became known for its tanning industry, which played a significant role in its development. The tanning of leather in Grampound goes back to medieval, perhaps even Roman, times and the large cattle markets supplied the hides. From 1711 the Croggan tannery flourished in Grampound and until quite recently produced high quality leather by the traditional oak-bark method. Manor Tannery, was owned by the Croggon family from 1711 and continued trading using the traditional oak bark tanning technique until its closure in 2000.
