On the far wall beneath the south facing window is a large ceramic Butler's sink with heritage chrome mixer tap, set within the granite worktop. The deep window sill demonstrates the thickness of the walls in this substantial home. There are more cabinets below including an integral dishwasher and cute shelved alcove to the right. The room also includes a radiator, north facing window with window seat to the front garden and a pine door to the snug. The open fireplace with working chimney also looks through to the snug and there is a large under-stairs storage area and door to the utility room.
