Situation

Watlington is a charming Oxfordshire market town, often referred to as England's smallest town, yet offering a wealth of amenities and a strong sense of community. Tucked at the foot of the Chiltern Hills, within an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, it enjoys a setting that combines countryside tranquillity with excellent access to nearby towns and London. The high street retains its traditional character and is home to a selection of independent shops, cafés, restaurants, and public houses, alongside practical facilities such as a post office, library, and health centre. A weekly market and regular local events reinforce Watlington's welcoming community feel, while larger shopping and leisure facilities are available in Thame, Wallingford, and High Wycombe. Transport connections are excellent: the M40 (Junction 6) is a short drive, providing routes to Oxford, London, and Birmingham, while rail services from Princes Risborough and High Wycombe offer fast and direct access to London Marylebone. London Heathrow is approximately 40 minutes by car. Watlington is well served educationally with its own primary and secondary schools, and families also benefit from access to the renowned grammar and independent schools of Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire. Surrounded by rolling countryside, the area is ideal for outdoor pursuits with numerous walking and cycling routes, including the nearby Ridgeway National Trail. The town is also well known for the distinctive Watlington White Mark, a chalk landmark carved into the hillside overlooking the town. With its blend of history, natural beauty, and modern amenities, Watlington offers an appealing lifestyle for those seeking a rural setting with strong connections.
