A unique opportunity to purchase this charming period detached three bedroom house situated on the outskirts of the village and standing in 0.42 acre gardens. With potential for further improvement, this property is available to purchase 'chain free'.

This charming period detached house is pleasantly situated on the outskirts of the large West Norfolk village of Northwold. Standing in gardens and grounds extending to approximately 0.42 acre (subject to survey), the house which probably dates back to the mid to late 1800's, has been updated, extended and modernised in more recent years and offers comfortable accommodation over two floors. The large garden plot and desirable location offer purchasers a rare opportunity to purchase a character property with potential for further improvement, extension or development and early viewings of this chain free property are recommended. It should be noted that any future development potential would be subject to local authority approval.

The original cottage is mainly of Chalk lump construction. The modern two storey side addition and single storey rear addition is of cavity/blockwork construction. There is a modern concrete interlocking tiled roof.
