Walham Grove was originally built in the 1860's, the land owned by the Harwood family and is part of a small cluster of roads that are some of the closest to Fulham Broadway (the centre of Fulham). This makes them an extremely convenient place to live with plenty of shops, cafes and restaurants close to hand (including a large Waitrose and Wholefoods market). The closest underground station is Fulham Broadway (District Line, Zone 2), however transport links at Earls Court, Parsons Green and West Brompton are also within walking distance. You can catch regular buses from Fulham Broadway that head towards Chelsea, central London and the city.
