Located at the quiet end of this picturesque village, on the cusp of the stunning Yorkshire Dales National Park, lies this charming detached bungalow on Beacon View. Built in the 1960s, this property exudes character and tranquility, offering a peaceful retreat for its future owners.

As you approach this bungalow that has great potential, you are greeted by a quiet cul-de-sac setting, ensuring a relaxing living environment. The property boasts three inviting reception rooms, providing ample space for relaxation and entertainment. With two cosy bedrooms and a well-appointed bathroom, this home is perfect for a small family or those seeking a peaceful abode.

Step inside to discover a spacious living room adorned with dual aspect windows that overlook the beautifully landscaped front and side gardens. The semi-open plan dining room leads to a sunroom, offering a bright and airy space to unwind. The living-dining-kitchen area is a focal point of the home, featuring high-quality fitted units and integrated appliances, making meal preparation a joy.

The property also offers ancillary accommodation, including a substantial laundry room with garden views and access to the rear patio. The bedrooms are generously sized, with the principal bedroom benefiting from an ensuite shower room and fitted cupboards. A further house bathroom caters to the needs of residents and guests alike.

Outside, a single garage and driveway parking provide convenience for multiple vehicles. The front garden is beautifully maintained, while the expansive rear garden offers a mix of lawn space and recreational areas, including a charming vegetable garden.

In summary, this substantial detached bungalow in Embsay presents a rare opportunity to own a piece of countryside paradise, very close to a national park. Don't miss your chance to make this tranquil retreat your own.
