Built within the Georgian period, high ceilings and sash style windows feature throughout the apartment's spacious accommodation, providing a sense of grandeur and elegance. To access the apartment, you alight a small set of steps into the communal entrance hall where the apartments door is located and, upon stepping inside, the bright dual aspect sitting room can be fully appreciated. A stunning, herringbone patterned floor runs through the majority of the accommodation, leading from the sitting room, down the "L shaped" hallway providing good storage and into the separate dining area with additional bespoke storage. Both the double bedroom and kitchen enjoy views over the communal grounds and the kitchen is fitted with a modern range of cabinets complemented by wooden work surfaces and contrasting tiled splash backs. The bathroom is especially large for the size of apartment, offering plenty of room for a bath with a huge storage cupboard as you enter.
