Description

A valuable parcel of mainly level to gently sloping accommodation land extending in total to 59.10 acres/23.92 hectares or thereabouts adjoining the Welsh Wildlife Centre. Divided into seven enclosures of which five are laid to permanent pasture and equate to 54.6 acres or thereabouts. Currently the land is used for both grazing and cropping purposes but offers significant environmental appeal and amenity value. Farmed in an environmentally considerate manner providing dedicated areas of habitat with sheltered wildlife corridors, woodland and ponds which extend to 4.44 acres or thereabouts. As a result we would strongly advise that the land would be ideally suited to those looking to embark on a conservation or re-wilding project with a high regard for the natural environment.

Alternatively the land has been used for the grazing of livestock and cropped annually and should also be of interest to those looking for agricultural land in the area.
