The central London neighbourhoods of Clerkenwell and Farringdon are smart and vibrant, with easy access to the rest of the capital city. Clerkenwell has much to offer residents, including a variety of shops, theatres, pubs, restaurants and coffee shops.

In recent years, there has been much residential development in the area, making Farringdon very appealing to commuters. While the neighbourhood has its roots in the 12th century, in recent years it has experienced a resurgence as one of London's most popular places to live and work. Clerkenwell properties are modern and stylish with lots of character. A boost from Crossrail has provided an excellent investment opportunity for property in the Farringdon area, giving rise to a number of industrial warehouse conversions and new developments near Farringdon Station.

Notable areas of interest include Smithfield Meat Market and adjacent highly-rated restaurants, the food outlets and eateries on Charterhouse Street, the Sadlers Wells Complex that's world-renowned for dance, The Royal Shakespeare Company based in the Barbican Arts Centre, The Charles Dickens Museum, and leading nightlife hotspots including Fabric nightclub.

Excellent bus and underground travel connections from Barbican tube and Farringdon Street secure easy journeys toward the West End or east to Tower of London and Liverpool Street. Bank Station (DLR rail and Central, Northern, District, Circle and Waterloo & City lines) is a key travel and transport interchange serving the heart of the City. Journeys to Canary Wharf via DLR take only 12 minute.
