Outside

A Cotswold wall and mature hedge provide privacy from the village lane. The main drive leads to ample parking and a garage. The stunning views may even include a glimpse of the neighbour's donkey! Beyond the parking, a former kitchen garden remains as a grassed area. Part of the 33ft tandem garage requires repair. Another Cotswold wall separates the gardens and stone outbuildings from the vehicles, with a path to the back of the house. The landscaped gardens feature level lawns, flower beds, and a small wooded area. A paved terrace to the side is ideal for entertaining. The sheltered front courtyard provides access to the breakfast room and adjoining coach house, with double wooden doors, an inspection pit, and storage above. Additional Cotswold stone outbuildings include a studio, workshop, and store. Subject to planning permission, these offer much potential.

Situation

'The Camp' is a picturesque Cotswold hamlet, nestled centrally between the villages of Bisley, Miserden, and Birdlip, and just north of Stroud town. The origins of its unusual name remain a subject of intrigue—could it be linked to ancient Neolithic camps, or perhaps a Civil War encampment? Local amenities in the nearby village of Miserden include a village store, post office, primary school, and a charming pub. Bisley is home to two pubs and a primary school, while the nearby village of Cranham offers a primary school and an active scout centre. Birdlip also boasts a primary school and The Royal George Hotel. For further education, a variety of state, grammar, and independent schools can be found in Stroud, Gloucester, and Cheltenham. The nearest train station is located in Stroud, offering direct services to Paddington, London.
