This substantial property provides the perfect balance of traditional and contemporary styles resulting in a fabulous family property within a desirable central location of the town. The home offers flexible accommodation over two levels which will appeal to many growing families or those looking for the necessary facilities over one level. Set under a multi-pitch roof set to rosemary tiles, the rather handsome external aesthetic is notable for its imposing triple bay window projections, red brick dressings, and archway with timber storm door entranceway.

Internally, the property exudes a great deal of traditional charm, with beautifully kept stained glasswork, wood panelling, doors and architraves providing various points of interest throughout the accommodation. Presented to market in fine condition and painstakingly maintained and improved over the course of clients' stay, a neutral decorative theme compliments the feeling of space and light throughout the home, whilst emphasising the beautiful period detail.

Accessed initially via an entrance vestibule, the subjects of the internal accommodation are best summarised as:- Welcoming reception hallway, large bay windowed lounge with feature fireplace as focal point, bay windowed formal dining room (or additional double bedroom depending upon requirements), luxuriously tiled family shower room – complete with quality three piece suite, thermostatic shower fitting, heated towel rail and vanity storage. The 'country cottage style', dining kitchen is well equipped with a number of integrated appliances, ample base and wall mounted units and contrasting work surface space. From the kitchen, a porch offers courtesy door access to the rear garden. Completing the downstairs are two exceptionally generous double bedroom, one overlooking the side garden with built in wardrobe storage, the other to the rear.

On the upper landing you will find a very generous master bedroom with fabulous built in storage and an additional shower room. There is a further storage room which could be considered for a home office space. The eave storage is extensive and can be accessed from various points. In essence a charming family home.

Externally, the property sits upon a quite sizeable level garden plot which is perhaps best appreciated by first-hand inspection. Established hedging and seasonal trees/bushes offer a colourful definition to the perimeter of the property, whilst good sections of lawn, stone pavements, chips, and flower bedding combine to great effect. The rear of the property is stocked with mature flowering bushes and trees which creates a real sense of peace and privacy and a large decked patio provides the ideal spot to relax and/or entertain. The former coal cellar now houses the boiler whilst a sizeable, detached garage is fitted with lighting. The garden shed has also been replaced.
