

TA6 Part 1

Preliminary information form

Introduction

Sellers

Read the following information carefully.

Answering the following questions accurately, as soon as you can, will assist the marketing of your property for sale. All the information you supply will form part of the sale contract with the buyer. Ask your solicitor if you need help to complete the information or you do not know the answer to any question.

Anyone thinking about buying the property will be able to see this information. Buyers' mortgage lenders, valuers and surveyors may have access to it too and making this information accessible at an early stage should reduce the time it takes to reach the point of an exchange of contracts and avoid the risk of wasted costs.

Your duty as a seller:

You must tell the buyer anything you know that would affect, or is likely to affect, their decision about whether to buy the property, this is required by the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008:

- You must not leave out information you have that a buyer might find relevant in order to make an informed decision to buy your property. If you do not know the answer to any question, you must say so.
- If your property is leasehold, you'll need to provide extra information.

Changes in the information

If information changes after you submit the form, because of an event or you find or receive more information after completing the form:

- before exchanging contracts – tell your solicitor and estate agent at once and in writing
- after exchanging contracts – tell your solicitor at once, before you complete the sale.

Email your questions to property@lawsociety.org.uk.

Buyers

This information is to help you know more about the property. If you need permission to be able to do certain things at the property – for example if you wish to build an extension, keep a pet, operate a business - you should mention this to your estate agent, solicitor and surveyor.

Make sure you obtain the information that you need to know. If the seller has told you something that is important to you, tell your solicitor so that this information can be confirmed as part of the contract.

The seller will only be able to tell you about matters that the seller knows. For anything else about the property or its location you must make your own enquiries and investigations or arrange for them to be carried out for you.

If you are obtaining a mortgage please remember that the inspection carried out on behalf of your lender is not a survey but only a valuation for the lender's purposes. To satisfy yourself as to the physical and structural condition of the property you should instruct a surveyor to carry out a survey for you. Investigations and advice on this aspect is not warranted by the Seller and is not included in the conveyancing work by your solicitor. Your solicitor will help you decide which searches you may need when buying the property.
