• CALCOTT HALL •

History

Calcott Hall is a Grade II listed property believed to have been built circa. 1725. The property has been identified to have been built over four main phases which includes the original Georgian Hall, a later C.18th lean-to extension to the east elevation, the addition of the octagonal lantern and ogee pediment to the west elevation in circa. 1800 and a number of various C.19th additions, extensions and modification mainly to the east elevation.

Calcott Hall is linked to the north west by the U-shaped configuration of traditional brick agricultural buildings that were built in 1858. These superseded an earlier layout that were previously positioned further to the north.

Calcott Hall is recognised as having a national significance and high heritage value, being a rare example of an early Georgian Country House in Montgomeryshire.

DESCRIPTION

Calcott Hall is a Grade II listed property with a U-shaped range of traditional brick barns to the north within a courtyard setting. The hall requires complete renovation providing a unique project for someone looking to restore this type of property to its former grandeur.

The property commands outstanding views over the surrounding Montgomeryshire and Shropshire countryside. The property is enclosed to the south east by lawned gardens with mature trees and part brick boundary wall. The property is accessed via a concrete track from the council maintained highway.

The Hall is constructed of brick walls under a pitched slate roof with brick chimney stacks. The property is set over four storeys with a basement beneath most of the footprint and attic accommodation within the roof space. There are original features throughout including the centrally located dog-legged staircase, sash windows and original sawn timbers.

• CALCOTT BARNES •

The barns are located within a U-shaped configuration and are linked to Calcott Hall at one end. The barns are constructed of brick walls under a pitched slate roof. The barns are set over single and two storeys and still have original features which include arched doorways and windows, stable doors and grain store.

The buildings listed building consent and planning consent for conversion to up to 7 residential units along with renovation of Calcott Hall, and alterations to the existing vehicular access.
