About

“Where Centuries of Heritage Embrace Modern Family Living”

The Old Manor is more than a home, it is a story whispered through centuries, a house of rare heritage and timeless grace. Believed to be the oldest dwelling in Landkey, its thatched roof, sundial and climbing wisteria speak of the fifteenth century, while within, light and craft have brought it gently into the present day.

Here, a grand inglenook fireplace and ancient beams sit in harmony with a bespoke oak-topped kitchen and thoughtful modern comforts. Generous rooms flow with character, yet invite family life, warmth and celebration.

Beyond the walls, lawns, an orchard and well tended gardens roll towards Codden Hill, offering beauty, productivity and peace in equal measure.

With a detached holiday cottage, a triple garage and a setting beside the village church, The Old Manor is heritage, sanctuary and opportunity awaiting its next custodian.

Property Description

Inside, history and comfort combine across a generous and flexible layout. Period features are in abundance, with exposed beams, inglenook fireplaces and a rare barrel-vaulted ceiling.

The entrance hall leads to a family room with open fire, a formal dining room, a study, and a superb kitchen/breakfast room complete with oak worktops, bespoke cabinetry, and high-end integrated appliances. A rear wing offers scope for a self-contained annexe with sitting room, bedroom and bathroom, ideal for dependent relatives or guests.

Upstairs are four double bedrooms, including a master with dressing room, alongside two well-appointed family bathrooms.

The detached holiday cottage is equally well presented, built of natural stone with a private enclosed garden. Its light and modern open-plan layout incorporates a fitted kitchen, dining and living space, together with two bedrooms and a stylish bathroom, offering either additional family accommodation or proven rental income.

Outside

Step outside and you enter gardens that feel as old as the house itself. Sweeping lawns stretch southwards, framed by flower borders and the ancient yew hedge that guards the neighbouring churchyard. From the terrace, the gaze carries across gentle fields to Coddan Hill, a timeless backdrop that changes with every season's light.

The grounds are alive with productivity and peace. An orchard heavy with apples and pears, a greenhouse, and neat vegetable beds invite the rhythm of the good life. A running stream meanders through the garden feeding a pond teeming with nature, while soft fruit cages and wild corners enrich the sense of abundance.

Practicality lies alongside beauty.

A triple garage and ample parking serve modern needs, while outbuildings provide shelter for tools, logs, and garden wares.

Yet the true essence here is sanctuary, a place where heritage, nature and daily life flow together in harmony.

Location

North Devon is a place where coast and countryside live side by side, offering a lifestyle that is both relaxed and richly rewarding. Golden sands at Saunton, Croyde and Woolacombe are within easy reach, drawing surfers and walkers to their shores, while Exmoor National Park lies to the east with its heather-topped moorland, wooded valleys and wide skies. Whether it is beach days, bridleways or quiet country walks, The Old Manor sits perfectly between them all.

Families are exceptionally well served by education. The renowned West Buckland School, one of the South West's leading independent schools, is a short drive away, while Barnstaple and the surrounding area offer a strong choice of state primaries and secondaries. The village of Landkey itself has a popular primary school and local amenities, including a great local pub, adding to the sense of community.

Barnstaple, the region's market town, is just three miles away with a full range of shopping, leisure and cultural facilities. From its station, a scenic rail journey winds through the Taw Valley to Exeter, where mainline services connect swiftly to London Paddington. Road links are equally convenient, with the nearby A361 North Devon Link Road providing quick access to the M5 at Tiverton Parkway, ensuring the area remains well connected despite its rural charm.
