From the parking area, three sets of wrought iron gates open to the front gardens. There is a substantial stone flagged seating terrace with exterior lighting and access can be gained to the main entrance door and inner hall. Also having a timber decked area with exterior lighting. Beyond the seating terraces is a tiered garden, which is mainly laid to lawn with exterior lighting and a circular stone wall houses the Klargester septic tank. To the left side of the garden, a gravelled border with stepping stones leads to stone steps that rise to a stone flagged seating terrace with exterior lighting. Access can be gained to garage 4. Stone steps also rise to a path, which wraps around the rear of the garage block and access can also be gained to the higher tier of the garden. There's a further lawned area above the main garden, which is bordered by woodland.

From the stone flagged seating terrace at the front of the property, double wrought iron gates open to a further garden area with a grey stone flagged seating terrace and an astro-turfed lawn with a railway sleeper planting bed incorporating trees and shrubs. Access can also be gained to the formal lounge and left side of the property.

To the left side of the property, there's a stone flagged path with exterior lighting that is flanked to one side by lawn and hedging. The path wraps around to the rear and runs along the length of the house with lawn and hedging to one side. Access can be gained to the cottage.
