Rarely on the market this Grade II* listed Manor House is an exquisite property of substantial historical interest, listed with the National Heritage, England (as 'Cutthorpe Old Hall'). The main facade sits adjacent to the roadside in an impressive manner, forming the Jacobean part of the home constructed Circa. 1625 and retaining an abundance of original character of its day. An adjoining, semi-detached Tudor farm property is positioned to the rear, providing additional accommodation and character dating back to the 1400s. This exceptional residence is adorned by stone mullioned windows, gritstone fireplaces, exposed beams and coffered ceilings with 17th century mouldings throughout. Unique details can still be seen, such as recesses where 1600s streetlit torches were located as well as curious seventeenth century Apotropaic marks found within stone window frames.

The centrepiece of the home is without doubt the elegant stair tower, which boasts a grand square oak staircase leading to every level of this stunning residence. Space for entertaining and relaxing is plentiful both inside and outside of the property. The Ground Floor has a fabulous formal dining room, a beautiful lounge featuring a log burner with ancient fireback and a spacious sitting room that enjoys a dual aspect and room for a mini gym, yoga space and exercise machines. Atop the tower is a Tower room that provides a versatile space and a vantage point of immersive seasonally changing views. There is also a large attic space, which together with the Tower room, provides substantial storage or additional living space.

The gardens of Old Manor House are a wonderful accompaniment to the home and incorporate four manicured lawned areas and two private stone flagged seating terraces. Within the garden, there are notable attributes such as a stone water feature, staddlestone, Victorian water pump, ancient cheese press and a safely contained stone well.
