Full description

Grade II* listed timber-framed, seven-double bedroom country house situated on a private lane, the property has a wealth of period features set within mature gardens of about 1 acre including a small productive vineyard producing Madeleine Auevine grapes. In addition there are a further 6 acres of paddocks and grassland, several outbuildings which could be converted STP, ponds and substantial sized timber-framed barn with possible potential for development STP. The property has a wonderful blend of privacy but with stunning views over the surrounding countryside.

Ground floor: The entrance has a glazed front opening into a light-filled hall, before leading you through to the pleasant drawing room. This is a very spacious entertaining area with views out across the gardens on both sides. It has exposed moulded oak beams that span the entire room, and an enormous Elizabethan brick-arched fireplace. The large Charnwood wood-burning stove in the fireplace is very capable of making this sizeable room feel warm and comfortable. To one side of the room, a panel oak door leads to the dining room with another oak-beamed ceiling and windows on two sides providing light and views over the garden, which can be accessed through an arched glazed door onto a paved area and lawn. From here a door leads to the study/snug, the oldest part of the house dating back to 1360, a cosy, light-filled room with bespoke bookshelves that line one side of the room and a small fireplace with a log-burner. The farmhouse-style kitchen is also accessed from the drawing room, which is another generous double aspect room with exposed beams and a large brick-arched fireplace housing a Redfyre stove. To one side there is a purpose-built, walk-in larder and a utility/rear entrance hall and back door. Most large windows have unobtrusive secondary glazing. Craftsman-built oak staircase and Downstairs WC.

First floor: The first floor is accessed via an oak-framed stair tower extension, with double-height leaded window offering views across the garden to the barn and fields beyond. The long landing leads to the principal bedroom at one end of the house, which has stunning views over neighbouring villages to the Castle at Castle Hedingham. This triple-aspect room has a dressing area to one side and an en suite bathroom with a separate shower. Adjacent to the principal bedroom is the guest bedroom and en suite, another beautiful room with views to the south over the garden and a brick-arched fireplace and small en suite shower room. At the other end of the landing there are a further two south-facing bedrooms, one with a brick-arched fireplace and the family bathroom, currently fitted with a large walk-in shower and offering views up to the village church. Above the entrance hall to the front of the house is the purpose built home office.

Second floor: The top floor of the house is reached by an open wooden staircase and has windows to the front and back with far-reaching views and exposed oak timbers throughout. There is one large central bedroom with a further interconnecting bedroom giving access to a large loft space and separate bedroom with washroom on the other side. There is potential to increase the accommodation over this floor STP.

Garden: The gardens are a real asset to this property with beautiful landscaped-designed borders and planting surround the house on all sides and include a white garden, rose borders, jewel garden, formal lily pond, woodland garden and walk, and a lavender path up to the front door. Beyond the woodland walk is a large vegetable garden with greenhouse and fruit cage, an orchard and other fruiting trees around the garden including apricot, morello cherry, cherry-plum, greengage and bullace. To the front of the house, the sweeping lawns are planted with mature trees either side of the driveway leading up to a parking area for four cars. At the back there is a large stone-paved patio facing south, that wraps around the house providing seating, dining and relaxing areas with stunning views across the neighbouring landscape. Adjoining the house to the south is a double-storey barn (which could be converted into an annexe, subject to planning). There are a further two single-storey barns housing garden machinery, wine making equipment and the wine store.

Land

To the front of the farm house and beyond the existing driveway and formal gardens is a fenced paddock of approximately 2 acres containing an old carriage drive and a double avenue of lime trees; to the rear of the farm house and gardens is the larger detached barn, together with a smaller detached barn set in approximately 4 acres of land. Most of the 4 acres are meadow land, but they also contain two wildlife ponds and a small woodland area.

Services
