DESCRIPTION

Siddall Jones are pleased to present to the market this rare freehold ground rent investment interest at Holloway Head, Birmingham — a long-dated, RPI-linked income stream secured against a prime city centre development site in one of the UK's most active regeneration corridors.

The investment produces an immediate net initial yield of 4.38% with compelling reversionary potential at the first rent review in August 2028, when the income is anticipated to rise materially in line with cumulative RPI growth since lease commencement in 2018.

The lease runs for 150 years from 31 August 2018, providing an unexpired term of approximately 142 years. Rent reviews are upward-only, RPI-indexed every ten years — the hallmark characteristics of an index-linked institutional investment. This type of opportunity is rarely available in the open market.

The permitted development scheme provides for up to 487 residential units, with the tenant covenanted to complete the scheme within the agreed development period. Additional income protections include a penalty rent uplift of £150,000 per annum if development is not completed on time, and an escalator of £300 per annum per unit constructed above 487.

TENURE

The freehold interest is held by Birmingham City Council, registered at HM Land Registry under title numbers MM94577, MM93842 and WK45379. Offered with vacant possession of the freehold reversion.

RENT REVIEW & REVERSIONARY INCOME

The next rent review falls in August 2028 — within approximately two years of today — and is anticipated to produce a material uplift in the passing rent. The review mechanism is upward-only, indexed to RPI against a base figure of 281.7 (August 2018).

	3.0% p.a. RPI	3.5% p.a. RPI
Base Rent (2018)	£60,000 p.a.	£60,000 p.a.

Projections are indicative only based on assumed compound RPI growth rates. Upward-only mechanism means rent cannot fall below £60,000 per annum regardless of RPI. Actual reviewed rent determined by published RPI at August 2028.

LOCATION & SITUATION

The property is situated at Holloway Head, in the heart of Birmingham city centre, at the southern fringe of the Westside district — one of the most significantly transformed areas of the second city.

The site sits within a short walk of Brindleyplace, the Utilita Arena, Broad Street and the Southside district. Birmingham is the UK's second city with a population approaching 1.1 million in the city proper and a wider metropolitan area of circa 4 million people.

The city has benefited from sustained investment in infrastructure including HS2 (Curzon Street station), the Smithfield regeneration and continued transformation of the city centre residential offer. Holloway Head is an established residential and mixed-use location within the city's core regeneration corridor.

The site extends to approximately 2,401 sq m (2,872 sq yds).

Invesco Real Estate's European strategy carries a strong ESG focus, with a business-wide net zero target embedded across its investment approach. The firm has also recently launched the Invesco Global Direct Property Fund, a vehicle designed to give UK defined contribution pension schemes access to direct global real estate — reflecting the breadth and innovation of the Invesco Real Estate platform.

The covenant of a development vehicle associated with Invesco Real Estate provides substantial comfort to a prospective purchaser. The creditworthiness of the Invesco platform, the quality of its institutional client base and its track record of delivering complex development programmes internationally are all relevant to the long-term security of this income stream.
