ABOUT THIS PROPERTY:

An impressive entrance hall defines the arrival, generous in scale and setting the tone for the accommodation that follows. A corner bay window introduces a distinctive feature, echoed in the bedroom above and reinforcing the home's original design language. The main living room is calm and well balanced, while the dining room sits separately with French doors opening onto the garden, creating a natural connection to outside space. The kitchen includes space for a table and chairs, supported by an adjoining utility area, with a cloakroom completing the ground floor.

Upstairs, is configured to three bedrooms allowing for a large family bathroom. The second bedroom benefits from an en suite, offering flexibility for guests. Double glazing throughout adds to the overall practicality.

Externally, the south west facing garden enjoys consistent light, with a patio arranged for outdoor dining, enhanced by an electric wall mounted heater and a stone water feature. The garden is secure and mainly laid to lawn, rising via steps to an upper section, both bordered by mature planting. A path leads to a timber shed and a summerhouse beyond. To the front, the house is set back behind a garden with a long driveway leading to a car port and a separate single garage with power, lighting, an handy inspection pit and a rear window.

LOCATION:

Within easy reach of Penn Hill Village, the area offers a selection of cafés, restaurants and everyday amenities. A wooded path through Branksome Chine leads to the beach, passing tennis courts and a café along the way. Transport links are well established, with buses from Penn Hill and rail connections from Parkstone and Branksome reaching London Waterloo in around two hours.
