There is also a small, dilapidated outbuilding, together with a separate rectangular parcel of land divided from the main grounds by an old bridleway.

The substantial stone outbuilding, measuring approximately 3.59m x 5.28m (11' 9" x 17' 4"), is in a derelict condition and adjoins the neighbouring cottage. Although the building is roofless, it retains an original mill wheel positioned centrally within the structure.

There may also be potential to create a driveway and parking area accessed directly from the lane, subject to the necessary local authority consents and approvals.
