DESCRIPTION

A late Georgian property, previously serving as the Estate Managers House for the High Hall Estate and latterly run as a successful guest house, The Grange is a spacious and versatile period property, providing adaptable and well specified accommodation of 4,076 square feet, arranged over three floors. The house sits at the top of the High Street, only a short walk from the centre of what continues to be a sought after and very pretty national park village. There are well established, south facing garden and grounds and ample private parking within a gravelled parking area which is accessed off South Lane to the rear.

The house has been substantially improved over recent years, with joiner made double glazed window units fitted to the majority of the front of the property, a stylish new kitchen fitted with quality integrated appliances and full redecoration throughout. The resulting property being an extremely well-balanced home, where the recent enhancements serve to complement what is a lovely period residence.

In brief. Entrance hall with cloakroom, a large, front facing main reception room with access to the side reception lobby. To the rear is the dining kitchen, with French doors out to the garden and an original well which was uncovered during the original refurbishment, lit up and covered over with glass offers an interesting feature to the room. Adjoining is a butler's pantry which is adjacent and additional to the main kitchen in the house. There is a cosy rear facing snug and a utility room with separate pantry storeroom. On the ground floor is a large en-suite bedroom, which was originally the main dining room of the house with the serving hatch from the original kitchen still in evidence. This could be easily reverted back if required for a different purpose. To the first floor are four, large and well-appointed bedrooms, each with an en-suite bath or shower room, tastefully fitted with modern fixtures. The top floor currently serves as an independent suite of rooms, used as owners' accommodation, with large bedroom, bathroom, study and main open plan kitchen and living space.

The Grange sits upon a generous plot which amounts to just over a third of an acre in total. The property itself fronts the High Street and has a separate vehicular access from South Lane at the rear which opens out onto a large area of parking, with an EV charge point.

The majority of the gardens stand to the side of the house with a mature pleached copper beech tree hedge affording privacy and shelter to the north side of the garden. Two central lawns dissected by a sandstone slab path and flanked by well stocked perennial and herbaceous borders. At the centre of the lawn stands a magnificent walnut tree. On the east side of the grounds is a raised Indian stone seating area adjacent to the timber potting/tool shed and a gravelled seating area. On the south side of the grounds is a third seating area nestled under two productive Bramley apple trees.

The garden has been wired for lighting and electric.
