About The Property

Looking for a character cottage with income potential, original period features and a self-contained annex in a well-connected West Wales village? This charming, extended cottage combines beautifully updated accommodation, patio and gardens and countryside surroundings, all within easy reach of Cardigan Bay, Cardigan and Newcastle Emlyn.

This beautifully presented and tastefully modernised property has evolved into a particularly well-balanced home combining character, practicality and flexibility and includes air source heating and solar panels. Situated in the village of Llechryd, the property has been carefully improved by the current owners whilst retaining many of the details that give homes of this era their appeal, including exposed stone walls, timber beams, wood burning stoves and deep window reveals.

The setting works especially well for those wanting village life without feeling isolated. Llechryd sits within the Teifi Valley and offers straightforward access to both Cardigan and Newcastle Emlyn, each around a ten-minute drive away, while the coastline and beaches of Cardigan Bay are also within comfortable reach. It is a location that continues to attract buyers looking for a mix of countryside surroundings and day-to-day convenience.

The main cottage centres around an impressive open plan kitchen, dining and sitting area which immediately gives the property a sociable and welcoming feel. The room blends modern finishes with the building's original character surprisingly well. Contemporary fitted units sit alongside exposed oak beams and brickwork, while the wood burning stove creates a natural focal point within the space. The kitchen itself has been thoughtfully designed with Neff appliances including eye-level double ovens, separate grill, microwave, dishwasher and five ring hob, alongside generous worktop space and a breakfast bar providing additional storage and seating and underfloor heating in this area.

From the main living area, an inner hallway leads through to the separate lounge, another particularly attractive room featuring exposed brickwork and a second wood burning stove. Sliding doors open directly onto the outside seating area and gardens, helping the room connect naturally with the surrounding plot.

The utility room adds another practical layer to the layout, fitted with matching storage units and additional worktop space alongside plumbing for appliances and further storage. This area also acts as the connecting point to the annex accommodation, making it versatile for a range of living arrangements whilst still allowing both spaces to operate independently if required. It is also a large enough room that it could be split to offer a separate utility room for the annex if needed. A ground floor cloakroom houses the hot water cylinder and controls for the air source heating and underfloor heating system.

Upstairs, the first floor continues the character theme with exposed stonework and beams across the landing. The main bedroom is a particularly impressive size, featuring exposed stone walls, fitted wardrobes and dual windows bringing in plenty of natural light. The remaining two bedrooms are both comfortable doubles, each offering a different outlook over the surrounding grounds and countryside. The family bathroom has been finished to a high standard with both bath and separate shower, vanity storage and tiled finishes creating a modern but understated feel.

The Annex:

The annex is one of the property's strongest selling points and offers genuine flexibility rather than simply additional occasional accommodation. Accessed independently through patio doors to the side into the lounge, it includes a lounge with built in wood burning stove, fitted kitchen, double bedroom and wet room. It could suit multi-generational living, guest accommodation, holiday letting potential or even workspace use depending on requirements.

Externally:

Externally, the grounds provide a real sense of space around the cottage. The gardens extend to the front, side and rear with a mix of lawned sections, mature planting and seating areas positioned to make the most of the countryside surroundings. The front patio area has been left to offer the new owners a chance to put their own touch on the finish (either with patio slabs, block paving etc) and works particularly well as an outdoor dining space during the warmer months with the addition of the brick built outside pizza oven. Steps lead down from the roadside to the patio, with parking space to the rear for one car, and ample spaces on the street for more parking if needed. The patio extends to the side and towards the rear of the property where there is an area of hardstanding (this area is currently open and needs fencing off). And beyond the parking area is another area of lawn, elevated behind the property. There is a very useful container to the front garden, partially timber clad, which is useful storage for garden and outdoor equipment, and a handy woodstore to the side of the property.

The property also benefits from owned solar panels alongside air source heating, helping improve efficiency whilst complementing the extensive renovation work already carried out.

Properties with this level of character, combined with a genuinely usable annex and gardens, are becoming increasingly difficult to find in the Teifi Valley area. Viewing is strongly recommended to appreciate both the standard of finish and the flexibility on offer.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AREA:

Llechryd itself remains a popular village within this part of West Wales thanks to its strong community feel and excellent access to both inland market towns and the coastline. Cardigan offers a range of independent shops, cafes, supermarkets and schooling, while Newcastle Emlyn continues to be popular for its traditional high street and riverside setting. The wider Cardigan Bay coastline provides countless beaches, coves and coastal walks, making this an appealing area for both permanent living and lifestyle-led moves.
