DESCRIPTION

Flick & Son are pleased to offer for rent this truly exceptional & unique five bedroom detached home situated on a private road in the pretty coastal village of Walberswick.

ACCOMMODATION

Built around 1904 for his own use by architect Frank Jennings—father of WWII filmmaker Humphrey Jennings—this remarkable home showcases his talent for intricate craftsmanship and his imaginative reuse of historic materials salvaged from medieval Suffolk buildings. The property is described as “arguably the finest Arts & Crafts house” in the official Walberswick Conservation report.

Te Awahou retains a wealth of original features, including exposed timber beams with delicate detailing, five fireplaces, diamond-paned leaded windows, and traditional plank doors. It is considered one of the best-preserved Jennings houses in Walberswick, with its historic character thoughtfully maintained alongside stylish modernisation.

A cobble and Suffolk-tile path leads to the front door, opening into a reception lobby and central hallway that links the drawing room, sitting room, kitchen/breakfast room, study and utility room, with stairs rising to the upper floors.

The triple-aspect drawing room is exceptional, distinguished by a soaring vaulted ceiling and medieval oak beams with carved embellishments. Two brick fireplaces anchor the room, one featuring a finely carved wooden mantelpiece originally from the 16th-century palace of the Duke of Norfolk in Harwich, complete with crest. Large windows fill the space with light, while French doors open directly onto the gardens.

The AGA kitchen/breakfast room is a bright, well-sized space, fitted with restored cabinetry, a central island, gas hob and oven, and an oak stable door to the garden. An elegant sitting/dining room features a striking fireplace with a white stone surround and deep hearth, forming a natural centrepiece. Throughout the reception areas are exposed beams, studwork, oak panelled doors, and wooden floors—hallmarks of Jennings’ signature style. A generously sized study with views over the garden and a practical utility room complete the ground floor.

A staircase with beautifully carved handrails leads to the first and second floors. The first floor offers four spacious bedrooms, each with large leaded windows that welcome abundant natural light. The first floor also hosts two bathrooms; one with walk-in shower and the other with a gorgeous bathtub and walk-in shower. The second floor hosts an additional large bedroom with charming views across Walberswick towards the sea.

Te Awahou’s gardens are an exceptional feature, complementing the house beautifully within its plot. A gravel drive to one side provides off-road parking. There is also a garage reached independently from Millfield Road.

To the east lies a decorative sunken garden with low walls, intricate stone and tile pathways, mature hedging, and a picturesque folly.

The wider grounds consist of lawns bordered by rich herbaceous planting, a pond set amid a wildflower garden, and an array of mature trees. Paths lead to a large covered terrace framed by lush planting. Nearby stands the garden office, with French windows opening onto the terrace.

Beyond this area is another enchanting section of garden planted generously with lavender, its symmetrical paths leading to a classic decorative greenhouse.

The property is heated via oil fired central heating. It has an EPC rating E.
