A Historic Conversion

Designed and built by its architect-owner. Near-complete and ready to finish

Built as a parish Schoolroom and small Chapel in 1796 with a larger Chapel built in 1874, The Old Chapel has stood at the heart of Oakridge Lynch for over two centuries. It is now for sale and near completion by the architect who designed the conversion and has overseen the works throughout.

What is for sale is not a project to start... it is a project to finish. A vision already drawn, costed and ready to build. The Schoolroom is open. The Chapel volume is roofed, heated and watertight. The building is habitable now and will remain so throughout the remaining works.

For a buyer with the imagination to complete it, this property offers something genuinely rare in the Cotswold market.

Locality

Welcome to Oakridge Lynch

Oakridge Lynch sits above the Frome valley, five miles east of Stroud, reached by stone lanes through ancient woodland. Once a gathering point for the Arts and Crafts movement, it remains one of the most remarkable villages in the Cotswolds.

Village Life

The village is genuinely self-contained with everything needed for daily life within walking distance. St Bartholomew's Church, Oakridge Parochial Primary School, the Butchers Arms Pub plus Ollie's Shop and Post Office open seven days and stocking local produce, artisan cheese and freshly baked bread, sit alongside a village hall, allotments, tennis courts and cricket club with a pavilion.

Events

Oakridge Lynch has a full calendar of community events, including the May Revels on the green each spring, the Annual Village Show every September and Folkridge, the village's own folk festival, as well as countless other village events. The Women's Institute has met every month without interruption since 1923, one of many clubs and societies that make up village life here, from the Gardening Club and Wine Club to the Rambling Group and History Club. A parish pamphlet, 'What's On' is delivered to every door bi-monthly.

Nature

For those who love the outdoors, Oakridge Lynch is exceptional. Ancient woodland, wildflower meadows and river valleys are accessible directly on foot from the village. Siccaridge Wood, a safeguarded ancient woodland is home to rare hazel dormice, bluebells, and silver-washed fritillary. At Daneway Banks, the large blue butterfly has been successfully reintroduced. The Thames and Severn Canal at Sapperton, the Slad Valley and the Cotswold Way are all within easy reach.

Connections

Stroud Life

Set within the wonderful location of Stroud, known as the Heart of the Cotswolds. The town, nestled between five valleys is one of the most celebrated, vibrant and community driven market towns in England. Known for its creative energy, independent spirit and long tradition of alternative thinking, it has attracted artists, musicians and entrepreneurs for generations. The weekly Farmers' Market, voted the best in the country, draws producers from across the region every Saturday. Independent shops, galleries, artisan food, the Sub Rooms arts venue, Stroud Brewery and Stratford Park with its outdoor lido, leisure centre and tennis courts, make it a town with genuine year-round culture. Stroud is cited by the Sunday Times among the best places to live in the UK

Connections

Stroud station provides direct services to London Paddington in approximately 80 minutes. By road, Bristol is 40 minutes, Cheltenham 25 minutes, Cirencester 15 minutes and Nailsworth just 10 minutes. Junction 13 of the M5 is within easy reach for the Midlands and beyond.

Schools

Oakridge Parochial Primary School sits within the village itself. Bisley Blue Coat C of E Primary is 1.5 miles away. Marling School and Stroud High School, two of Gloucestershire's most highly regarded grammar schools, are within catchment and several well-regarded independent schools are within easy reach of the wider area.

THE PROPERTY

The Old Chapel

The Chapel (1874)

Two buildings, two centuries, one home.

Almost complete and fully modernised, the Chapel is entered through either of two original church doors, the right through a vestibule with a staircase rising to the congregation gallery above, the left directly into the nave.

Inside, the full expanse of the building opens before you, double-height, open to its roof structure. At its heart, the 'cone' rises: a new architectural element designed to draw light down through the full height of the building. Polished concrete floors run throughout, warmed by underfloor heating.

The curved wall separates the open nave from a sunken sitting room below, a more intimate social space, its curved line lending itself naturally to seating. A large contemporary wood-burning fire anchors the back wall. Bi-fold doors open at courtyard level directly onto the walled courtyard garden. White marble steps rise at the rear into the vestry providing utility, shower room and secondary courtyard access.

On the left side of the building, the main staircase rises to a substantial, light-filled double bedroom spanning the rear width of the property, with double glazed doors overlooking the courtyard. A bathroom with sunken bath and shower room serves this level. From the landing, a staircase opposite the bedroom climbs into the cone, two bedrooms on successive floors, the uppermost a room of genuine character: a large skylight overhead providing generous views of the countryside.

A separate winding staircase on the ground floor, from the nave leads to the congregation gallery, now a large bedroom or home office. The front wall holds a large circular stained glass window at its centre (known as the Rose window). The wall opposite is entirely glazed, looking down into the Chapel below. This room can be linked to the upper bedroom within the cone (See Plans).

Above the congregation gallery, accessed from the second bedroom, there is space for a further small bedroom or office.

The Schoolroom (1796)

Connected internally to the Chapel and entered independently from both the front of the property and the courtyard, the older Schoolroom is a self-contained living space in its own right. The ground floor is open-plan (kitchen, dining and living), flooded with natural light throughout the day and has a wood-burning stove as its centrepiece. A functional kitchen is in place pending the buyer's specification. A spiral staircase rises to a mezzanine bedroom and bathroom beneath the original roof-line. Steps descend from the ground floor to the wine cellar below, maintaining a constant 11-14°C year-round.

Gardens and Grounds

The walled courtyard to the rear is approximately 80% complete, Cotswold stone throughout with a landscaped patio and long lily-pond water feature known as a rill, running its length. The courtyard garden is sheltered and catches the sun throughout the day. The external garden wraps around the property east to west. To the front, a driveway provides off-road parking. Planning is in place for an external studio.

The Architect

Gransmore Architects is an award winning RIBA chartered practice based in Stroud, specialising in heritage conversion, contemporary extension and sustainable residential design across the Cotswolds and beyond. Recent work includes Timbercombe Art Retreat, commended by The Sunday Times for Best Conversion, Adaptation and Reuse.

The Old Chapel is the practice's own project, designed and built under Gransmore Architects' supervision.

The architect is available to bring that vision to fruition, working with the buyer's own preferences, adapting to their specification or stepping back entirely. The project is comprehensively supported: drawings, calculations, tenders and programme are all in place for whoever takes it forward.

The Opportunity and Programme

A stage rare in the heritage market.

The Old Chapel is offered at a point of completion that few heritage properties ever reach. The building is habitable, heated and watertight. The buyer steps in from day one with no need to vacate or carry duplicate costs.

- PHASE 1: Building Control: Discharge of the outstanding building regulations application. Safety, fabric, services. Approximately three months on site following contractor mobilisation.
- PHASE 2: Specification: Upper-floor interiors, kitchens and finish, entirely at the buyer's discretion, within a design framework already drawn and costed.
- Planning permission is in place for an external studio and wood store.
- Four contractor tenders are in place dated May 2026.
- JCT Minor Works contract
- Gransmore Architects are available to project manage to completion.
- The property's stage of completion sits within standard criteria for specialist lenders for Renovation Finance including Shawbrook, Together and Pepper Money. For cash or standard mortgage buyers, the building is habitable and mortgageable today.
- Full programme, Schedule of Works & costings available in Purchaser Information Note

Energy Efficiency

Score	Energy rating	Current	Potential
92+	A
81-91	B
69-80	C		72 C
55-68	D	66 D
39-54	E
21-38	F
1-20	G

The Energy Performance Certificate provides a measure of a home's overall energy efficiency. The higher the rating, the more efficient the home and the lower the running costs. The Old Chapel benefits from an air source heat pump with underfloor heating throughout, solar thermal and photovoltaic panels with export tariff, Passivent ventilation and high-performance insulation. No mains gas.

A new EPC is currently being commissioned, the register entry will be updated on completion.
