INTRODUCTION

Set within a generous, private plot of approximately 0.41 acres, Westwood is a distinctive detached bungalow built in the late 1960s. Architecturally designed with a contemporary emphasis, the property has been thoughtfully updated and refined to create a highly functional and comfortable home. It occupies a prime position along one of Swanland's most sought-after residential avenues, screened from the road and approached via a sweeping resin driveway.

The accommodation is designed to maximise natural light and views of the surrounding greenery, with key living spaces arranged in a seamless, semi-open-plan style. A welcoming entrance hall leads to a dedicated study and a practical cloakroom/W.C. The heart of the home is the expansive living and dining area, featuring large windows to the south and west elevations that capture the sun throughout the day. This space opens directly into a modern kitchen extension, where bi-folding doors bridge the gap between the indoor space and the garden terrace. A separate snug and a utility room add further versatility to the day-to-day layout.

The bedrooms are clustered along a central corridor, away from the main living areas. This includes a principal bedroom complete with a modern en-suite shower room and direct access to the garden via double doors, alongside three further bedrooms and a well-appointed family bathroom. The home is fitted with gas-fired central heating and a combination of uPVC and hardwood double glazing.

Outside, the mature grounds are partially walled and have been landscaped to offer excellent privacy and all-day sun. The resin driveway continues past the property to a rear courtyard, providing substantial parking alongside a double garage and an attached carport. The external space is completed by a greenhouse and a highly versatile brick-built outbuilding.
