The Location

Gadebridge is a district of Hemel Hempstead in Hertfordshire, UK, located north west of Hemel Hempstead old town. It was developed in the 1960s on land that once formed part of the grounds of Gadebridge House.

It centres on the Rossgate shopping parade. Gadebridge Park is the largest green space in Hemel Hempstead. A major Roman villa was discovered here at the time of its development (Gadebridge Park Roman Villa).

The main road through the district is Galley Hill which passes the Rossgate shops, Rossgate primary school and Gadebridge Baptist Church.

Nearby Boxmoor

Boxmoor village is close to the mainline train station which serves London Euston in a little under 30 minutes proving a popular location for commuters. Boxmoor was mainly constructed in the nineteenth century. However, over the last 20 years pockets of executive and family housing have been built giving the village a variety of different properties to choose from. This area of Hemel Hempstead derived its name from the famous Box tree and the moors which are still evident as you wander through the village today. Another attractive feature of Boxmoor is the historic Grand Union Canal which winds its way through the moors on the southern side of the village providing picturesque walks.

Excellent schooling is available nearby, including Boxmoor primary school, Lockers Park, Abbot's Hill, Westbrook Hay, The Hemel Hempstead School, St Rose's Roman Catholic Infants', John F Kennedy Catholic School and the well regarded South Hill Primary School.
