This generously appointed and individually designed five double bedroomed family home sits in a private development of similar style homes in gardens of just under 1/3rd of an acre and enjoys striking views over the Clydach Gorge to the Black Mountains of the Bannau Brycheiniog beyond. Arranged over three floors and occupying a footprint of just over 3,000 sqft (278.8 sqm), this home has been configured with a cut roof for maximum use of its space giving a full height to its third floor thereby ensuring there is no compromise on the versatility of its accommodation on every level. Built and completed by its current owners 20 years ago, this adaptable home has three reception rooms, a dual aspect kitchen / breakfast room and a utility room, cloakroom and three modern bathrooms serving its five bedrooms. Sitting in glorious landscaped, tiered gardens with a south facing aspect, plenty of parking and a double integral garage, this home is must-see for those seeking larger than average accommodation with ease of access to shops and schools and a short commute to Abergavenny along the newly finished A465.

Entered through a large open plan reception dining hall, a central staircase leads up to spacious galleried landings on both upper floors. There is a beautiful symmetry to the design of this house, with the three main rooms on the ground floor all having French doors directly opening onto the veranda covered sun terrace in the garden. The living room is filled with natural light from its triple aspect and features a substantial brick fireplace with timber mantle over. Whilst this provides cosy warmth to the room, there is zonal underfloor heating running throughout the ground floor making this an energy efficient home for heat control. These three rooms are interconnected via panelled doors, with the dining room linking between the living room with the kitchen / breakfast room. The comprehensively fitted kitchen enjoys a dual aspect with Mandarin Stone flooring in both this room and the dining room. A central kitchen island has a breakfast bar seating area and for those who enjoy cooking, there is space for a range style cooker and an American style fridge / freezer. The noise of everyday life is protected from the kitchen with the washing machine being housed in a utility room and there is room for cloaks and boots in an adjacent boot room area. Thoughtful in its design concept, the utility room leads down via a few steps into an integral garage giving simplicity from the parking area up into the boot room and kitchen. To complete the sizeable living accommodation, steps lead from the ground floor to a mezzanine level which is currently used a great dual aspect family room with French doors and a Juliette balcony looking over the Vale of Usk. This room also connects to the first floor landing so it could equally be used as a bedroom to suit; and being above the garage, offers separate annexe potential if required.

There are three bedrooms on the first floor of this home. The principal bedroom has an en-suite shower room with the remaining bedrooms having the use of a contemporary bathroom suite. The large first floor landing leads to an equally roomy second floor landing, with two further bedrooms being served by a shower suite on this floor. There is lots of integrated and fitted cupboards throughout this home – as the old saying goes: you can never have too much storage!

Outside, the tiered, landscaped gardens encircle this family home with each level providing a variety of interest and seating spaces and splendid views over the surrounding countryside. With parking available to both the front and upper rear of this home, there is certainly plenty of space for a family to enjoy each other's company in its great entertaining areas both outside and in; alternatively there are plenty of quiet spaces away from the hubbub of family life, making this the perfect retreat for every generation.
