This charming two storey building sits close to the original Manor House and, other than the village church, is understood to be the oldest remaining structure within the village of Rolleston itself. Connecting back to the Manor House across a sheltered walled courtyard this interesting period building is presently used to accommodate the plant for the main heating system and in our opinion is of a scale which lends itself suitable for a variety of uses and may be readily converted to provide charming two-bedroom ancillary living/guest accommodation.

THE FORMAL GROUNDS

The Manor House is approached through a gated remote-controlled entrance which opens on to a charming mellow stone set courtyard with contrasting linear detailing which has been laid to a particularly high standard on a concrete base and offers a beautiful, aesthetically pleasing drive, which is also highly practical with parking and turning space for numerous vehicles. The drive approach is illuminated for convenience.

The immediate formal gardens which surround the Manor House are meticulously managed and beautifully complement this wonderful period home, there being expansive lawns, a host of stocked beds and borders, an outstanding range of topiarised shrubs including box trees, ornamental specimens, bushes, and standing trees.

To the front of the property there is a shallow ornamental pond - water feature which offers an attractive vantage point back towards the Manor.

There is a long front terrace which extends to provide walk around pathways around the perimeter of the property.

ORNAMENTAL STONE TERRACE AND ATTRACTIVE ITALIANATE WATER GARDEN

This exquisite sheltered courtyard area was designed to complement the recent Trevor Muir extension and offers a relaxation area of great beauty and serenity beyond which there is a wisteria clad arbour leading into a "secret garden" with a pathway leading to a sheltered seating area and knot garden set against the backdrop of Holy Trinity Church; in our opinion something rather special.

Beyond the formal gardens there are outer lawns which are again immaculately managed and extend into a productive orchard, from which there is a particularly attractive vista of the westerly façade. An independent vehicular access from Station Road leads into the orchard area forming a useful secondary entrance point.

Offering a first-class equestrian amenity to complete the classic small country estate configuration of the Manor House comprising five loose box stables, tack room and hay store.

Grass Paddocks

Extensive grass paddocks border to the east of the formal grounds and lawns and the overall sale area extends to 7.32 acres / 2.96 hectares.

AGENTS NOTE

The owners of Rolleston Manor are reluctant and genuine sellers of this exquisite and rather special home.

During the period that they have been custodians of the property they have rejuvenated and managed the formal gardens to a remarkably high standard, complementing well-considered improvements and restorative maintenance works to the stable block, outbuildings, and main house.

The product of this diligent and well-considered programme of works was to bring the property very much up to date for 21st century living and also included redecoration of much of the house internally and it is presented with a stylish and timeless elegance, for the next owners to continue to enjoy for many years to come.....
