Lon Y Ffynnon

Completed in April 2026 and never previously occupied, this substantial five-bedroom detached home offers the rare pleasure of moving into a completely fresh house without the wait associated with buying from plan. Generous proportions, a flexible arrangement of reception rooms and a particularly practical family layout make this an appealing proposition in one of north Cardiff's most sought-after residential areas.

The ground floor unfolds from a spacious entrance hall with a separate reception room offering excellent scope as a study, snug or playroom. The newly fitted kitchen has been designed around generous work surfaces and a comprehensive range of integrated appliances, accompanied by a separate utility room. A dedicated dining room provides space for more formal occasions, while the principal living room is particularly well served by glazing, including patio doors opening directly onto the garden. A separate WC completes the ground floor layout.

Upstairs, five bedrooms provide considerable flexibility. One is presently arranged as a dressing room, while two of the larger bedrooms enjoy their own en-suite shower rooms. Built-in storage features within selected rooms, complemented by a separate family bathroom and useful landing storage.

Outside, the rear garden combines a paved terrace with tiered lawn, while driveway parking leads to a garage. The property is offered with no onward chain.

Lisvane combines established village character with excellent access to Cardiff. Its centre retains local shops, community amenities and traditional pubs, while nearby Lisvane and Llanishen Reservoirs offer extensive waterside walks and open space. Local schooling includes Lisvane Primary, with Llanishen High among the secondary schools serving the community. Lisvane & Thornhill railway station provides a convenient link towards Cardiff city centre, making this an attractive setting for those wanting space and greenery without losing the connection to the capital.
