DESCRIPTION

Little Beck Cottage is a traditional, mid-terrace stone cottage situated in the village of Bellerby, a short drive from Leyburn. The property is fully double glazed, has been well maintained and has recently been redecorated and recarpeted throughout.

The property is entered via a useful porch with a stone-flagged floor and space for hanging coats and stowing footwear. This leads through into the living room which has a window overlooking the garden at the front and a multi fuel stove set within the chimney breast with a wooden mantle. A second door leads into an inner hallway, with a useful ground floor shower room with WC and basin to the left and ahead through to the kitchen at the rear. The traditional style kitchen has ample work surfaces and space for freestanding appliances which opens out into a larger dining space.

To the first floor there are two well-proportioned double bedrooms, each enjoying a pleasant outlook across the village. There is also a house bathroom with WC, basin and a bath together with natural lighting provided via a velux sky light window.

Externally the property is complemented by a south facing enclosed garden to the front which is terraced and offers a lawn, flower beds and a patio for seating. There is also a good-sized storage shed for garden and outdoor equipment.

Overall, Little Beck Cottage would make an excellent full-time home, starter home, active retirement home or holiday let on the edge of the Yorkshire Dales National Park.
