- Three well-balanced bedrooms upstairs, offering flexibility for family living, guests, or home working.
- Family bathroom completing the first-floor layout, with potential for refurbishment to suit modern tastes.
- Spacious rear garden providing a blank canvas for landscaping, outdoor entertaining, or creating a private retreat.
- Detached summerhouse with power and light, ideal for use as a home office, studio, gym, or games room, adding valuable and versatile extra space.

If your saved folder is full of renovation reels and “before and after” transformations, this three-bedroom home in Loman Path might just be your moment.

Owned by the same family for decades, it’s now ready for a fresh vision—and a new owner who can see the potential behind the walls. Step inside and you’ll find an entrance hallway leading to a well-proportioned lounge, a space that’s just waiting for a modern touch. To the rear, the kitchen/diner offers generous proportions and the perfect canvas to create that all-important heart-of-the-home setup.

Upstairs, three bedrooms and a family bathroom provide a solid layout, giving you plenty to work with whether you’re reimagining, reconfiguring, or simply refreshing.

Outside, the plot keeps delivering. The rear garden is a great size, offering space to design, unwind, or entertain, while the detached summerhouse—complete with power and light—opens the door to a home office, studio, or games room. It’s the kind of bonus space that quickly becomes a favourite.

Offered with no onward chain, this is a project without the usual delays. A home with history, potential, and just enough blank canvas to let your imagination do the heavy lifting.
