"The flat is in a great location with loads of nice places in Old Market to eat, drink and be entertained. The building, which used to be home to the Bristol Post, is a unique building unlike so many flats in the area and with its high ceilings there's loads of wall space for art. We have great memories of inviting friends back to ours for the 'afters', and living on the ground floor with only one neighbour to the side means you don't have to worry too much about making noise whilst dancing round the living room."
